The application would change the original historic grouping – request that you look at this application and integrity of the conservation zone. The remaining historic setting would effectively lose the protection afforded by the SPD 	Julian Scott	Support noted. Description will be amended to reflect the subdivision of the property into The Old Stables and Parkstone.

6	All assets and SPD	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Last meeting on 11 October 2016, the SCC gave preliminary consideration to the draft SPD and resolved <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) To support the principle of the draft SPD insofar as it relates to the town of Sevenoaks 2) To submit further representations aimed at strengthening the wording of the draft SPD, the details to be agreed by members prior to submission • The result of that later agreement by members, although no confirmation was received from the Chamber of Commerce and the District Council's Planning Portfolio Holder properly reserved his position • Consider that unnumbered para 2 on the first page of the draft SPD is misleading in stating that "The Local List does not provide any additional planning controls but..."- we propose that these words should be replaced with: "The SPD provides for limited further planning controls over buildings and other structures on the Local List, which...". • The whole purpose of the Local List is to afford additional protection to its contents • Consider that unnumbered para 3 on the first page (beginning "The inclusion of...") should be amended by the exclusion of its second sentence (beginning "This means..."). • The remainder of para 3 would be better located under a new heading "Alterations and Extensions" to precede "Demolitions" on page 4 of the draft SPD 	Charles George, Chairman, Sevenoaks Conservation Council	The following amendments were made to the document to reflect Sevenoaks Conservation Council comments; <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Para 2 now reads, "The Local List does not require any additional planning permissions to be sought..." • A new heading created 'Alterations and Extensions' as per suggestion. • Amended page 4 'special interest' as suggested • Amended page 4 'incorporates sustainability' as suggested • Comments regarding Article 4 Directions are addressed within the main report

		<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Consider that in unnumbered para 1 on the fourth page (beginning “Requests for...”) the words “is no longer of special interest...” should be replaced with: “no longer meet the selection criteria...”.• “special interest” could be misleading as not defined elsewhere in the SPD• Consider that on the fourth page, immediately after unnumbered para 1 (beginning “Requests for...”), there should be a new heading “Planning controls”.• Consider that on the fourth page of the draft SPD, and before the heading “Demolition”, there should be a new sub-heading “Alterations and Extensions”, followed by: “When a planning application is made for a property on the Local List, or an application which will affect the setting of a locally listed property then any potential alterations or extensions will be looked at by the Council with regard to the potential impact of any development on the heritage significance of that property, including its setting. This accords with the first part of Policy EN4 –Heritage Assets in the ADMP”• Fourth page of the draft (unnumbered para 5, beginning “Where development...”), we agree with the representation of the Sevenoaks Society that the words “and incorporates sustainability” should be replaced with “and constitutes sustainable development”.• The draft SPD relating to Article 4 directions should be substantially strengthened• “The Council could use....” is too tentative and could put at risk the rationale for having a Local List. We suggest amended wording under the sub-heading “Article 4 Directions” as follows: “The Council will monitor the risk and effects of development on locally listed properties and where there appear to be threats to locally listed properties

An outstanding example of the style of the period.” - The building is a mock-Tudor design and, as such, it is derivative and cannot be considered an example of an original architectural style The Council’s own Sevenoaks Residential Character Area Assessment states that the style is “derived” - document also states “The character of this part of St. Botolph’s Road is unified not by the buildings themselves, but the verdant vegetation and the discrete appearance of buildings.” • Criterion 7 – “Designed by an architect of national or local importance” - Charles J Cable FRIBA is understood to have designed Bowerwood House. He was a local architect of some note who was also a notable local public figure - Bowerwood House was designed by Dr. James Harrison and not by Charles Cable. While Mr. Cable would have been responsible for drawing the final plans, James Harrison designed the property • Criterion 13 – “Association with an important national or local historic figure or event” – Planning Policy team states “relates to the well known local Harrison family and their development of the Scientific Institute which Bowerwood House houses. Specifically the Harrison Institute was founded by Dr James Harrison in 1930 as the Harrison Zoological Museum. Based at Bowerwood House” - the Trustees are in full support of the work carried out by the Harrison Institute, they do not feel that the creation of the Trust is “an important local historic event” - Harrison Institute is involved in scientific research in the Old World tropics and subtropics and, as such, has no particular relevance to the local area • Criterion 14 – “Important association with the development 	James Stephen Chairman of Trustees Harrison Institute	Objections have been noted. 20	The Granville School	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Should not be included on the proposed list • The original builder does not carry the same pedigree of historic interest - main building was originally a family home but not the work of a renowned architect • The quality of education is of concern and the need to have the latest technology and facilities is essential – this requires the need for future investment and modernisation of the building • Granville School has added modern and sympathetic designed buildings - The recent planning application (SE/15/03937/FUL) is the latest improvement to the site. • Critical it maintains full flexibility within the planning protocol – need to modernise and adapt to health and safety requirements, to deliver the highest educational practices 	Vikki Seymour	Objection noted. 21	The New Beacon School	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Such status will be material from a planning perspective, in addition to the normal considerations applied to an application. • Main Building is withheld from registration - potential impact on a building of non-designated status will outweigh the benefit to the School and community that proposed development would deliver in terms of planning decision. • Maintain dialogue with Sevenoaks District Council as you may be able to provide additional reassurance over planning matters. 	Stuart Hammond – Business Manager, The New Beacon School	Comments noted. Main school building still meets Selection Criteria 2, 7, 9 and 14. Chapel still meets Selection Criteria 3, 9, 11 and 14.

The property will soon have to be re-roofed and insulated and the parapets re-capped - whether a listing will help myself or a future owner to do this Will have to apply for planning permission when or should I decide to carry out maintenance or alter the property? In addition have built two properties in a similar style to Hollym at the bottom of the garden - achieved an excellent energy rating which they hope to do with Hollym in the future although a listing may prevent this. Objection to the proposed inclusion of Ardsheal, 75 Kippington Road, Sevenoaks in the Proposed Locally Listed Buildings, Structures and Open Spaces being prepared by Sevenoaks District Council.

1.0 Introduction

Our client Mr Lloyd Deverall received a letter from Sevenoaks District Council dated 7th October 2016 informing him that it is proposed that his property be included on a list of buildings of local architectural interest. Although Mr Deverall enjoys his property and has spent a great deal of time and money on improving the gardens that surround the property he has never considered the architectural value of the property to warrant greater protection from insensitive development than that afforded by the property being within the Kippington Conservation Area.

2.0 Description of Property given in councils Locally Listed Buildings document

Two storey detached 1920s house with forward projecting hipped wings. Red brick in Flemish bond, with raised rusticated feature quoins, brick on edge window heads and brick on edge and tile drip sub cills. Low pitched roof plain tiled roof generous eaves and decorative plaster/render modillion block cornice/ eaves soffits. A pair of tile hung dormers to front roof pitch. Brick arched porch with rusticated pier and dentil course string and canted brick cornice. One and two light modern replacement windows with leaded lights.

3.0 Reason why the council believe the property should be locally Listed

The property has been listed as an asset under 2 categories:

4. Built between 1920-1938. An outstanding example of the style of the period.
18. Building or group of buildings that contributes significantly to the townscape, street scene or appearance of the area.

5.0 Reason for objection to the proposed local listing.

Is Ardsheal outstanding architecturally? Does it contribute significantly to the streetscape?

To these questions the council believe the answer to be yes and therefore wish to have a greater level of control over the development of the property.

However we believe that sufficient control is afforded the council by the fact that the property is within the Kippington conservation area and is highlighted within the Kippington Conservation Area Appraisal and Management Plan as being a building contributing to character and is within an important grouping that includes the grade 2 listed Kippington House and other surrounding buildings.

Kippington Conservation Area Appraisal and Management Plan

It is puzzling that the building is now being referred to as “an outstanding example of the style of the period” but there isn’t a single photograph of it in the Kippington Conservation Area Appraisal and Management Plan where one would expect an outstanding building to be highlighted.

It is also confusing how Ardsheal has been put forward as needing to be locally listed however several other buildings which have been highlighted as buildings that contribute to character as shown on Map 5 of the Kippington Conservation Area Character Appraisal are not being put forward as requiring local listing, including the buildings either side of Ardsheal.

We believe that Ardsheal is a large, robust, nicely detailed property from the 1920’s however we don’t believe that it is outstanding. It has already evolved to become more suitable for 21st century living having been significantly extended in 2007/08 under granted planning permissions 06/01556/FUL & 07/02740/FUL and internally retains little of the 1920’s original.

Therefore we would like to see greater information on why there is the belief that Ardsheal is outstanding and also why other buildings that are highlighted as contributing to character within the conservation area are not.

The photograph that has been included as part of the asset ID page is somewhat misleading as it is taken at an angle that ensures it doesn’t show the two storey side extension to one side of the building or the garage to the other. One of the nicest aspects of Ardsheal is actually how the building sits within the landscape with sufficient space to the southeast to allow views down the slope to the north eastern boundary.

Below are sections of the description of the property given by the council and our responses:

These are not original. They were added in 2007/08 when the large double storey extension was added to the southeast elevation together with garage and family room to the northwest elevation.

“One and two light modern replacement windows with leaded lights”.

Every single window at Ardsheal has been replaced with double glazed units.

Our client agrees with the council’s refusal to allow subdivision of the plot that was applied for by previous owners of the property. In the Kippington Conservation Area – Planning guide the architectural description of the conservation area is characterised by large individually designed houses standing in substantial plots, surrounded by mature planting.

Hypothetically, if Ardsheal was demolished and replaced with a design of similar scale and massing but inspired by the many Art and Crafts homes that are well represented in the area, would this contribute more or less to the streetscape? It could even be that a replacement dwelling sufficiently better than Ardsheal might one day become a listed building.

We believe it is a large individually designed house standing on a substantial plot that is what is significant about this asset not the building that currently sits on the plot. Its contribution to the streetscape currently is a combination of our client’s investment in his garden and the scale and massing of the home not its architectural quality.

Our clients main concern however is that in the future there might be the need to add a further two car garage that would be in the southern corner of the site screened from the street by mature hedge planting and at level, which would minimise its visual impact. The garage accommodation would therefore be set in front of the buildings principal facade line so as not to obstruct the existing views through the site. As previously written one of the nicest aspects of Ardsheal is actually how the building sits within the landscape with sufficient space to the southeast to allow views down the slope to the north eastern boundary.

There are many examples in the conservation area where garages have been set in front of the buildings principle facade line. We believe that a garage could be sensitively incorporated into the southern corner with consideration given to planting and ridge height. Our client would like reassurance that local listing would not prohibit this sort of development.

6.0 Conclusion

Mr. Deverall would request that Ardsheal is not included as a locally listed building. Many of the building's attributes highlighted in the Council's write-up were the major renovations made in 2007/08. In fact, the strength and imposing nature of the house on its large plot arose mainly from the substantial, sympathetic add-ons made in 2007/08 and the recent sizeable investment in the garden, lawns and landscaping.

Mr. Deverall is of the opinion that Ardsheal's impact on the townscape, street scene or appearance of the area is already protected and established within the Kippington Conservation Area Appraisal and Management Plan. Sufficient control of insensitive development is already in place.

Objection to the inclusion of Uplands, The Vine, Sevenoaks in the Proposed Locally Listed Buildings, Structures and Open Spaces being prepared by Sevenoaks District Council.

1.0 Introduction

Our client Mr Justin Lloyd-Williams received a letter from Sevenoaks District Council dated 7th October 2016 informing him that his property had been included on a list of buildings of local architectural interest.

Mr Justin Lloyd-Williams as the owner of the property wishes various elements in regard to the historic development of the property and its current condition to be considered with regard to the architectural quality of his property as an asset and therefore its worthiness for inclusion as a locally listed asset. He is also puzzled as to why his property warrants greater protection above that already afforded by the property being within the Vine Conservation Area.

Detached house in Arts & Crafts style, built 1901/3, two-storey and attics. Ground floor red brick, first floor tile-hung, tiled roof. Main feature is a three-storey off-centre gabled entrance bay with six-panelled recessed door under three-centred stone arch with small stone mullioned window to right; either side a dogleg stair with iron railings to first floor tile-hung pent-roofed bay with side entries, and three two-light casement windows with divided fanlights. Above is wide timber-studded gable with an eight-light mullioned window. To left is two-storey gabled bay with timber-studded gable and three-light casement window in tile-hung first floor. Current owner believes that there were substantial additions including external staircases added 1950-1970.

3.0 Reason why the council believe the property should be locally Listed

The property has been listed as an asset under 3 categories:

3. Built 1900-1919 (early C20th). Retains original features. Quality distinguishes it from other buildings of the period in Sevenoaks.
11. Exhibits important characteristics of design, decoration, craftsmanship or use of materials.
18. Building or group of buildings that contributes significantly to the townscape, street scene or appearance of the area.

5.0 Reason for objection to the proposed local listing.

Yes, Uplands was built in the early C20th but it retains extremely little of the buildings original features. Every façade of the building has had elements added in an unplanned and disjointed manner. The principle façade to The Vine only exhibits characteristics of design, decoration and craftsmanship within the elements that were not demolished in the 1970's. During the buildings unplanned, organic development various chimneys have been removed or blocked up with poor repairs both internally and externally. Internally the house feels disjointed rather than quirky.

There is photographic evidence of what was demolished in the 1970's and replaced with elements that the councils document lists as being the houses main features. These are not features worthy of local listing, they are unconsidered 1970's additions that result in there being nothing harmonious about Uplands house's principle façade when compared to what it used to look like in its original state seen in the photographs from 1900, 1960 & 1975 contained later in this document.

Window locations have been moved and new windows added as part of the works in the 1970's to convert the building from a single house to flats. The materials on every façade reflect a lack of care and a "close enough" blasé approach to matching the materials of new elements to the original building. The brickwork of all the 1970's additions are in stretcher bond that doesn't reflect the original house and adds to the buildings lack of harmony.

Below are sections of the description of the property given by the council and our responses:

" Main feature is a three-storey off-centre gabled entrance bay"

The gable is off center not as part of the original design but as a consequence of the addition of a two-storey gabled bay sometime between 1900 & 1960 as can be seen from photographic evidence. The property has evolved organically over the years with nothing appearing to be planned.

"six -panelled recessed door under three-centred stone arch with small stone mullioned window to right"

This is actually all that is left of the original stone porch as most of it was demolished in the 1970's as part of the buildings conversion to flats.

"either side a dogleg stair with iron railings to first floor tile-hung pent-roofed bay with side entries, and three two-light casement windows with divided fanlights"

All added in the late 1970's. We know it was after 1975 due to photographic evidence later in this document. The stairs are of extremely poor quality. The bricks of the staircases are a poor match to the original and are laid in stretcher course, the painted mild steel (not wrought iron) railing design has nothing to do with the period of the original house and the steps are finished with the cheapest concrete paving slabs. The first floor tile hung pent-roofed bay is stuck on the front of the building. It is not a considered addition; it is there as the staircases are, to facilitate the building being used as flats in the 1970's. Behind the staircases and the repositioned ground floor façade of the house is an open void filled with drainage pipes that can't be maintained. The three two-light casement windows with divided fanlights were added in 2001 to replace 1970's modern minimal windows. The hung wall tiles are mixed tiles of varying quality and repair.

Based upon what can be seen from photographic evidence the timber studded gable is the only significant element of the original house that remains 100% intact.

“To left is two-storey gabled bay with timber-studded gable and three-light casement window in tile-hung first floor”.

Added in between 1900 and 1960 based upon photographic evidence.

With regard to other façade of the house:

North elevation

Staircase added in the 1970's. As with the other works to facilitate the buildings conversion to flats the extension is of extremely poor quality. The bricks are a poor match to the original and are laid in stretcher course. Hung tiles are a mixture of fishtail and square tiles as part of a mixture reminiscent of projects where cost savings take precedent over quality. On the northern boundary is located a brick and concrete interlocking tile 1980's double garage which doesn't try to match any element of the main house.

West elevation

Based upon the location of down stand beams internally and nibs in walls various building surveyors have indicated to Mr Lloyd-Williams that the whole of the west elevation was extended across its entire length during the 1930's. Although we can't confirm the date from our inspection of the property we would concur with the view that the property was indeed extended which might have all happened at the same time as the two-storey gabled bay to the north added between 1900 and 1960.

South elevation

Evidence of window locations being adjusted and single storey flat roof brick built boiler enclosure added. On the southern boundary is located an unsightly brick and concrete interlocking tile 1980's double garage which doesn't try to match any element of the main house.

Above is a photograph from the Sevenoaks Chronicle newspaper from 18th January 1975 that shows what Uplands looked like prior to the works in the late 1970's that converted the home from one dwelling to flats.

Uplands house due to the inefficient layout created by decades of unplanned extension and subdivision together with the existing building fabric has lead to unsustainably high energy consumption which is evident from an Energy Performance Certificate produced in 2013 that indicates that currently Uplands is just above level F at a rating of 41. This is one level above the lowest G rating.

Uplands can't be fixed without a considered redesign of the existing building. The concern of our client is that local listing could somehow add unrealistic requirements on a building that needs more than just a general refurbishment.

Out of the 3 categories for which Uplands has been listed we completely disagree with its listing under numbers 3 and 11. All the beauty of the original houses façade to the Vine was stripped away in the 1970's and the return to the pre 1970's façade should be encouraged.

- The six -panelled recessed door under three-centred stone arch with small stone mullioned window to right is actually all that is left of the original stone porch. The rest of it was demolished in the 1970's as part of the buildings conversion to flats.
- Climbing plants and trellis added to try and conceal horrid, poorly matched stretcher bond brickwork of staircases.
- Painted mild steel balustrade has no relation to the period of the original house.
- The first floor tile hung pent-roofed bay is stuck on the front of the building. It is not a considered addition; it is there as the staircases are, to facilitate the building being used as flats in the 1970's. Behind the staircases and the repositioned ground floor façade of the house is an open void filled with drainage pipes that can't be maintained.
- The three two-light casement windows with divided fanlights were added in 2001 to replace 1970's modern minimal windows.
- Based upon what can be seen from photographic evidence the timber studded gable is the only significant element of the original house that remains 100% intact.

Above right: One of the double garages added either side of the house in the 1980's. To the rhs of the photo next to the bay window is the poorly matched brickwork of the 1970's staircase addition that was created to allow access to 1st floor flat.

6.0 Conclusion

The only proposed reason for locally listing Uplands house that we believe could be justified is:

18. Building or group of buildings that contributes significantly to the townscape, street scene or appearance of the area.

If Uplands hadn't been converted to flats in the 1970's which lead to the substantial destruction of the stone porch and the addition of the 1st floor bay etc. we could understand it being listed under architectural merit but the works did happen. Therefore the return of Uplands to an aesthetic more in keeping with the original building should be encouraged rather than trying to locally list for reasons of quality, character and craftsmanship which clearly no longer exist in sufficient amounts.

We agree with The Vine Conservation area document where it states that the historic environment is a social asset of immense value. We also believe that the mature trees on the site contribute positively to the character and appearance of the street and the conservation area and support many of the observations within the conservation areas planning guide.

However our client requests that Uplands is not included as a locally listed building asset as The National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), Sevenoaks Council planning policy and especially being within a conservation area, already safeguard the sensitivity of any future development to a sufficient level.

1. This assessment has been prepared by Heritage Collective for the owners of 95 Dartford Road in Sevenoaks, Mr and Mrs Cornwell-Kelly. The site stands on the west side of the junction of Dartford Road, Bradbourne Road, Hollybush Lane and St John's Hill. The principal frontage of the building faces Bradbourne Road with a side elevation and main entrance to Dartford Road. A site visit was undertaken on 3 November 2016. Photographs taken on site form Appendices 7-13 at the foot of this report.
2. Heritage Collective has been instructed to make representations on behalf of the owners in relation to the proposed local listing of 95 Dartford Road by Sevenoaks District Council.
3. The proposed local list draft description (Sevenoaks District Council reference: 10472) describes 95 Dartford Road as follows:

"Description - Two-storey detached house built before 1840 and thought to date back as far as 1750. Painted render under hipped slate roof. Canopied entrance door on Dartford road with sash windows above. Bradbourne Road frontage has three sash windows to each floor with margin glazing bars, small brackets under cills, shallow moulded window heads to ground floor windows. The windows appear to be later replacements.

Asset Type House - detached

Selection Criteria – 9 Example of a style of building unique to the local area. 14 Important association with the development of the town or its social or cultural history. 18 Building or group of buildings that contributes significantly to the townscape, street scene or appearance of the area. 1 Built before 1840, original external features still recognisable."

4. This assessment describes the history of 95 Dartford Road, addresses inaccuracies in the proposed local list entry, and establishes the heritage significance of the building. It addresses the question of whether 95 Dartford Road should be locally listed when judged against the selection criteria set out in the draft Sevenoaks District Council Local List Supplementary Planning Document.

Description and History of 95 Dartford Road

5. 95 Dartford Road is a double storey mid-19th century domestic building with a replacement slate hipped roof and an angled extension block added later in the century along with a timber verandah which was constructed in the early to mid-20th century. The house has a principal three-bay elevation to Bradbourne Road and a narrower, less formal elevation to Dartford Road. There is a c.1960 single-storey extension to the south. The site contains two separate outbuildings, built in the late 19th and early 20th century after the construction of the house, which are set to the rear of the garden.
6. The building does not appear on the Sevenoaks tithe map of 1838 which demonstrates that the land was at that time in arable use (Appendix 1). Therefore, the claim in Sevenoaks District Council's draft description that the building is "thought to date back as far as 1750" is incorrect.
7. Looking at the evidence of the 1838 tithe map in more detail it is apparent that the plot within which 95 Dartford Road now stands was formed from a parcel of land on the west side of the Dartford Road and St John's Hill crossroads. This plot was numbered 753 on the map and the apportionment. This corner plot holding had a planted verge which followed the road and which is stated to have been a field in arable cultivation in the tithe apportionment (Appendix 2). It was in the ownership of Henry Hughes Esq. and occupied by William Bird.
8. The building was present, albeit in a rather different form to that seen now, by the time of the O.S. 1:10560 edition published in 1871, which was surveyed in 1868-1869 (appendix 3). From this evidence the earliest portion of the building was constructed between the 1840s and 1860s. This is consistent with the remaining stylistic/diagnostic features which suggest a date of c.1850.
9. The narrow single-storey outbuilding, which runs consistently along the western end of the plot between nos. 93 and 95, appears to broadly take its existing form on the 1898 1:10560 O.S. map. The 1:2500 O.S. map for 1909 shows the outlying plan of a second outbuilding. This double-storey outbuilding situated to the north-west of the main house was partially rebuilt in 2011 owing to subsidence, at which time an inserted connecting shed between the two outhouses was demolished (Appendix 11-12). It is clear these outbuildings were added at separate times after the construction of the main house c.1850.

10. It is difficult to ascribe a precise original date for 95 Dartford Road. This is because the building has been subjected to a high degree of alteration, to the extent that there is very little visible diagnostic evidence to work from. The suggested date of c.1850 is based on the few diagnostic features that can be seen, notably the shallow pitch of the hipped roof, the roof timbers (seen internally) and the moulded window heads to the ground-floor front elevation. The window heads constitute the only architecturally notable external feature of the building.
11. There are several distinct subsequent phases of development. Later accretions have contributed to the building's irregular plan form which consists of a rectangular block with a principal three-bay elevation to Bradbourne Road and a narrow projection set at an acute angle to the south-west. This projection appears to belong to a separate phase to the rest of the house. It is known from architectural plans held by the present owner (Appendix 6) that most of this projection was demolished in 1956 in connection with a remodelling of this time. The portion which remains has been substantially altered, with the end wall seemingly having been rebuilt and a new end gable having been raised.
12. The angled projecting block is not shown until the O.S. map of 1898, this apparently replacing a rectangular projection to the west of the house. The earlier projection was of comparable size but it was built in straight alignment and was shown on the O.S. map of 1871. The secondary extension probably dates to c.1890 though the reason for the irregular angle of the projection to the rest of the building is not known. It may be that the extension was built to formalise an existing temporary structure or outhouse on this alignment. It is an inexpensive construction process that has been noted in other modest domestic buildings of the early to mid-19th century.
13. A photograph of 1910 confirms that there have been several other changes (Appendix 5). The most notable alteration since 1910 is the complete removal of the substantial brick chimney stack to the Dartford Road side elevation. The photograph also shows the external walls without the present render and with a simpler porch arrangement than at present. The porch, which is modern, is incorrectly suggested to be original in the draft local list entry (a photograph of c.1970 in the possession of the present owner clearly shows a different arrangement).

14. The slates and ridge tiles to the roof are later additions possibly dating to the remodelling of 1956. The additions were built directly over an earlier tiled roof which can still be partially seen at eaves level (Appendix 13). Unfortunately, the external walls have almost all been rendered, making it difficult to date what were once presumably facing bricks. Evidence of quoins, window reveals and lintels has been covered over, and no original doors or windows have been retained. The sash windows stated in the proposed local list entry were all replaced with aluminium-framed types in 2011.
15. There is a modern extension to the south side of the Dartford Road frontage which was added after the 1956 remodelling. It is not shown on the plan of that date. The two uPVC conservatories to the rear of the building are also modern structures and are not of any heritage significance.
16. The verandah is shown to be in its present position on the 1956 plan, but it is apparent that this was a later addition to the building. Based on its simple design, the form of the part-glazed doors at ground and first floor-level (which give access to the verandah) along with the machine-sawn timber and the affixed bolted structural steel plates, this structure was probably added in the inter-war years. The 1956 plan shows that an external staircase associated with the verandah was demolished along with the angled block as part of the remodelling of the site at this time, thereby altering the earlier arrangement of this external feature.

Assessment of significance in relation to the draft Sevenoaks District Council Local List Supplementary Planning Document

17. The proposed local list text identifies four areas of significance which are said to justify the building's inclusion on Sevenoaks District Council's local list. These relate to the draft Local List Supplementary Planning Document which includes selection criteria. The four criteria for 95 Dartford Road are stated to be:

1. Built before 1840, original external features still recognisable

9. Example of a style of building unique to the local area.

14. Important association with the development of the town or its social or cultural history.

18. Building or group of buildings that contributes significantly to the townscape, street scene or appearance of the area.

18. Criterion 1: There is no evidence that any part of 95 Dartford Road pre-dates 1840, so it fails on the first of the four criteria. The assessment above demonstrates that it dates to c.1850, that it was not present on the tithe map of 1838 and that it has no fabric dating as early as c.1750, which is what is claimed in the draft local list description.
19. Criteria 9 and 18: 95 Dartford Road is a typical early to mid-Victorian cottage integrating a series of later additions of variable quality which obscure the original form and character of the building. It does not display any evidence of having been built in one of the Victorian revival styles, or of having been designed by an architect or builder with any particular knowledge of design, which may have distinguished the building. The house is modest in style and construction and, except for the small brackets under the cills and the shallow moulded window heads (which present rather basic approximations of classical detailing) has no external architectural features of distinction. The building has been compromised by significant alterations and fails to qualify under criteria 9 and 18.
20. Criterion 14: There are no known associations with important people, groups or events. As an example of an early-mid Victorian cottage it is a common and much-altered example. There are many better examples of buildings of this type and date throughout Kent and the rest of the country, and it fails to qualify under criterion 14.

Conclusion

21. 95 Dartford Road is a much-altered example of a common building type, namely a mid-Victorian cottage, dating between the 1840s and 1860s. There is no evidence that the building pre-dates the 1840s and certainly nothing to support the assertion that early the building has a history dating back to c.1750. The house and its outbuildings have little or no architectural interest or historic or associative interest. The building is not a particularly good or distinctive example of its type and it does not illustrate the development of 19th century housing in Kent in any specific way.

22. The building has been altered and extended, and most of the exterior has been rendered, hiding the original brickwork. All the external fenestration is modern, and the verandah to the rear of the site was added in the early to mid-20th century. The porch to Dartford Road is a modern addition. The overall extent of alteration to the building is very high, and it has obscured the original form and character of the mid-19th century building.
23. 95 Dartford Road does not meet selection criteria 1,9, 14 or 18 as set out in the draft Local List Supplementary Planning Document. The Council's assessment of the age and significance of the building is wrong, as has been demonstrated by the documentary evidence contained in this report. The building should not be locally listed.

Dear Mr Morris

Re: The Local List

Further to the meeting on 14th March which was attended by Charles George, John Stambollouian and myself on behalf of the Sevenoaks Society, I write to confirm that the Society's proposals that the Local List SPD should include Article 4 Directions, as set out in the attached documents, were adopted by the Society's Committee as being the Society's formal policy in regard to these matters at its meeting on 22nd March.

We ask that these proposals be considered by both the PAC and Cabinet at their forthcoming meetings.

Yours sincerely

Encs: Note by The Sevenoaks Society on Article 4 Directions
Changes sought by Sevenoaks Society on Article 4 Directions

LOCAL LIST SUPPLEMENTARY PLANNING DOCUMENT

CHANGES SOUGHT BY SEVENOAKS SOCIETY ON ARTICLE 4 DIRECTIONS

The Sevenoaks Society is concerned to ensure that the Local List SPD is as effective as possible in ensuring protection of locally listed buildings and structures. If there is no protection where changes are threatened, locally listed assets could have their special character harmed and their justification for listing negated. Were this to happen, the value of the local list as an instrument for supporting local heritage conservation would be materially diminished. Those who had given so much time voluntarily to this project over 4 years would feel that their efforts had been undermined which would not encourage future collaboration with SOC.

In order to ensure that that there is proper and appropriate protection to locally listed assets, the Sevenoaks Society asks that the following provisions in respect of Article 4 Directions be included in the SPD:

- The intention to consult on the making of an Article 4 Direction requiring planning permission for the demolition of any locally listed building outside a conservation area. This would serve to give effect to and put beyond doubt the policy already spelt out in respect of demolition in the SPD.
- The intention to consult on making an Article 4 Direction covering all locally listed railings and walls abutting a highway, regardless of their height. This would serve to protect these attractive and distinctive features of the Sevenoaks townscape which could otherwise be destroyed or demolished without the need for planning permission.
- The inclusion of a statement making clear that where SOC consider that the exercise of permitted development rights in any particular case or class of cases presents a threat to a locally listed building or buildings that they will give urgent consideration to issuing such an Article 4 Direction requiring the submission of a planning application.

The Society asks that these provisions to be considered by SOC in advance of the PAC meeting on 19th April and that SOC provide a written response on these points.

LOCAL LIST SUPPLEMENTARY PLANNING DOCUMENT: NOTE BY THE SEVENOAKS SOCIETY ON ARTICLE 4 DIRECTIONS

1. The Sevenoaks Society made representations to Sevenoaks District Council on the Local List Supplementary Planning Document. The Society's main concern was to urge the Council to substantially strengthen the provisions in the draft SPD relating to Article 4 directions. This note expands on the use which the Society feels should be made of Article 4 directions to underpin the Local List and support local heritage conservation.

National policy context

2. Government advice on the use of Article 4 Directions is:

The use of article 4 directions to remove national permitted development rights should be limited to situations where this is necessary to protect local amenity or the wellbeing of the area. The potential harm that the direction is intended to address should be clearly identified.

<https://www.gov.uk/guidance/when-is-permission-required#artic1e4>

3. Historic England develop and expand on that advice in the context of the heritage environment and, in particular, non-designated heritage assets such as locally listed buildings.

Where changes do not require planning permission, an authority may consider whether the exercise of permitted development rights would undermine the aims for locally listed heritage assets. In cases where it would, authorities may consider the use of an Article 4 Direction (in tandem with the local listing process) to ensure any permitted development is given due consideration.

https://content.historicengland.org.uk/images-books/publications/local-heritage-listing-advice-note-7/heagO1_8-local-heritage-listing.pdf

4. So there is clear advice from DCLG and from Historic England that the use of Article 4 Directions may be necessary and appropriate where there is a threat to local amenity and in particular, where the exercise of permitted development rights would undermine the aims for locally listed heritage assets.

Demolition of local listed assets outside conservation areas

5. The supplementary planning document giving effect to the local list provides that:

'Proposals for the demolition of locally listed buildings will normally only be permitted where the applicant is able to demonstrate clear and convincing evidence that the building is no longer of local importance, that it is beyond repair, restoration or reuse, or that the proposed redevelopment would produce benefits for the community which would decisively outweigh the loss resulting from demolition.' and

'Where a locally listed building is demolished without planning permission or the submission of a prior approval application, it will normally be a requirement of any subsequent planning application on the site that the property is rebuilt.'

6. Outside conservation areas buildings may be demolished without the need for planning permission. There are around 250 buildings proposed for local listing outside conservation areas.
7. In order to avoid locally listed buildings outside conservation areas being demolished without planning permission and triggering the need for such buildings to be rebuilt, it would appear to be prudent, and in the interests of both SOC and building owners, for an Article 4 Direction to be made to require planning permission for the demolition of a locally listed building outside a conservation area. This would serve to give effect to and put beyond doubt the policy already spelt out in the SPD. Such a provision would be in line with Historic England guidance which says:

'Article 4 directions may be used to require planning permission for the demolition of a non-designated heritage asset (such as a locally listed building outside of a conservation area), by removing the demolition rights under part 11 of the GDPO.'

<https://historicengland.org.uk/advice/hpg/historic-environment/article4directions/>

8. As an example, Watford BC has made Article 4 Directions withdrawing permitted development rights to demolition on locally listed buildings outside conservation areas.

https://www.watford.gov.uk/downloads/download/183/article_4_directions

Protection of walls and railings

9. In the preparation of the local list, the expert Selection Panel were agreed that one of the distinctive features of Sevenoaks lies in the variety and quality of its boundary walls and railings. These can be altered or destroyed under permitted development rights without the need for planning permission. And whilst the constraints are tighter within conservation areas, it is still possible to demolish boundary walls and railings of less than 1m in height which abut a highway.
10. Such walls and railings are constantly under threat as the spread of parking restrictions through the town and increasing car ownership cause householders to demolish boundary walls in order to create additional parking space in front of their houses. There are around 100 such items proposed for local listing, around two thirds of these are located outside conservation areas.

11. In order to preserve these attractive and distinctive features of the Sevenoaks townscape, SOC should make an Article 4 Direction covering all locally listed railings and walls abutting a highway, regardless of their height. This would mean that where householders wish to create additional parking spaces at the front of their houses or enlarge entry access, SOC would have the opportunity of discussing with them how this could be done without the wholesale destruction of walls and railings.
12. As an example, Hart District Council has made Article 4 Directions covering the erection, alteration or removal of gates, fences, walls or other means of enclosure to the frontage of any dwelling in all of its 33 conservation areas.

https://www.hart.gov.uk/sites/default/files/2 Businesses/Planning for businesses /Conservation and listed buildings/article%204%20directions.pdf

Swale Borough Council has made an Article 4 Direction for the Faversham Conservation Area covering the demolition in whole or part of any gate, fence, wall or other means of enclosure as well as a range of alterations to building elevations.

http://www.swale.gov.uk/assets/Planning-Forms-and-Leaflets/Planning Conservation/Alterations-to-your-home-in-the-Faversham-Conservation-Area.pdf

Protection of facade details and materials

13. The expert Selection Panel also agreed that what in many cases distinguished a building from others of a similar type and set it apart for local listing was its 'completeness' in the sense that it had its original pattern windows, doors, traditional roofing materials, etc.
14. Such features, particularly outside conservation areas, can be altered or destroyed under permitted development rights without the need for planning consent. If there is no protection where changes are threatened, locally listed assets could have their special character harmed and their justification for listing negated. This would undermine the work that has been done and materially diminish the value of the local list as an instrument for supporting local heritage conservation.
15. The Society recognises that a blanket Article 4 direction covering all permitted development rights for alterations to roofs, porches, materials and facade features of locally listed buildings may be difficult to justify in the light of Government policy that such Directions should not cover wide areas. The Society would like the SPD to make clear that where SOC consider that the exercise of permitted development rights in any particular case or class of cases presents a threat to a locally listed building or buildings that they will give urgent consideration to issuing such a Direction.

16. As an example, Canterbury City Council has made Article 4 Directions covering window replacement, house extensions, changes to roofs, installation of satellite dishes, adding vehicle hardstanding, and building or altering a gate, fence or wall which apply to many of the locally listed buildings in their area.

<https://www.canterbury.gov.uk/planning/find-out-if-you-need-planning-permission/planning-permission-in-an-article-4-area/article-four-direction-legal-documents/>

Common concerns of local authorities about the use of Article 4 Directions

17. Local authorities are often concerned that there will be an adverse impact on their resources from making Article 4 Directions. Historic England advice, based on research studies, is that any such impact is likely to be minimal.

Increase in planning applications is likely to be minimal as clear, concise controls, backed up by appropriate guidance, tend to encourage like-for-like repair or replacement in matching materials, which do not require planning permission (RPS Planning Research into the use of Article 4 directions on behalf of the English Historic Towns Forum October 2008, paragraphs 3.18- 3.19).

Compensation claims have been extremely rare. The RPS 2008 study found no evidence for any compensation payments actually being made (op. cit., paragraphs 3.20- 3.21).

In terms of the cost of preparation, integrating proposals for Article 4 directions with local plan preparation and conservation area appraisals minimises costs.

<https://content.historicengland.org.uk/images-books/publications/conservation-area-designation-appraisal-management-advice-note-1/hea040-conservation-area-designation-appraisal-and-management.pdf/>

18. The Society suggests that SOC signal its intention to make these Article 4 Directions in the SPD and follow up as part of the Local Plan review and the ongoing programme to review the District's conservation areas, through the production of conservation area appraisals and management strategies.

Date: 28th October 2016

Dear Sir / Madam,

RE: HalfwayHouse Public House, London Road. Sevenoaks TN13 2JD

I am retained by the owner of the Halfway House Public House, London Road which has been identified in the Sevenoaks Local List SPD consultation as a possible asset for local listing.

The draft SPD notes:

The designation of 'local interest' shall apply to a building that meets one or more of the criteria given below provided that its historic form and qualities have not been seriously eroded by unsympathetic alteration.

Underline my emphasis.

The SPD advises that there are 19 possible selection criteria which properties are being assessed against.

We note that there are only 3 potential selection criteria listed in regard of the Halfway House and we comment as follows:

1 Built before 1840, original external features still recognisable.

The Halfway House comprises a number of different buildings and additions built in different styles over a period of years. We have no evidence to date the original building or the subsequent extensions and alterations, other than the planning and building control history downloaded from the Sevenoaks District Council website – Appendix 1.

The history shows a single storey rear extension with flat roof was granted planning permission and built out in 2000; 2 UPVC windows were granted building control permission and completed in 2012; planning permission was granted in 2014 for an extension to the existing pub car park which was built out in 2015.

An external inspection of the property shows that any potential original historic form and qualities have been seriously eroded by unsympathetic alteration, extensions, works and repairs.

The eclectic style of the properties results in a number of different and jarring roof styles comprising hipped and flat roofs with different roof coverings such as clay tiles and slate tiles, bitumen felt.

Brickwork and pointing varies throughout, there are solid walls, cavity walls, tile hung walls, timber frame with brick infill.

Pointing varies in colour, quality and materials.

A good example of the varied brickwork and pointing styles/materials can be seen in the external chimney and stack to the Northern elevation which has been repaired a number of times over the years. In particular there is a large crude repair comprising assorted rocks and mortar fill to the bottom left hand side of the stack.

We could find no original timber sash windows, and noted that there are 2 modern UPVC double glazed units in the Southern elevation.

Rainwater is captured and discharged in the main through surface/external modern UPVC guttering and downpipes.

There are a number of extractor fans secured to the external wall surfaces.
There are also a number of power cables which are surface mounted to the external walls.

We have evidenced these in the attached photographs -Appendix 2.

14 Important association with the development of the town or its social or cultural history.

Underline my emphasis.

We are not aware of and have seen no evidence to suggest that this property has an important association with the development of the town or its social or cultural history.

18 Building or group of buildings that contributes significantly to the townscape, street scene or appearance of the area

Underline my emphasis

We would strongly disagree that the building contributes significantly to the townscape, street scene or appearance of the area.

The site falls within the Sevenoaks Urban Area but outside the designated town centre and outside any designated conservation area.

It is worth noting that the residential terraces known as "Quarry Cottages" to the immediate South of the property have not been included/proposed in the local listing consultation.

The area to the North of the Halfway House has recently seen a number of redevelopments carried out which has significantly altered the townscape, street scene and appearance of the area. These redevelopments include the Kent Police station at Morewood Close for residential units and more recently the neighbouring property at 80 London Road, which has been redeveloped to provide a Lidl food store @ 1,918 m² with 70 parking spaces.

A selection of street scene photographs are attached which show the Halfway House in context and evidences that it does not contribute significantly to the area - Appendix 3.

In conclusion we therefore consider that the property does not warrant being locally listed and we therefore object to the property being listed of "local interest" on behalf of the owner.

Yours sincerely,

Jill Hudson
